Good morning honourable judges, teachers and friends.

Today, I would like to talk about using the internet wisely. As we know, the internet has many uses. People of all ages use it daily. Some look for information, others seek to connect with friends and some use it to run their online businesses. However, there is danger lurking in cyberspace. Hence, we must learn to use the internet wisely.

The most important factor is to keep your personal information private. Do not share your address, ID number or phone number with anyone online. Keep your data and social media account password protected so that no one can easily access them.

Next, post mindfully. A simple rule is to think before you share. Do not post photos that are private. Also, never be unkind or malicious to anyone online. Refrain from posting negative subjects or points of view.

In a nutshell, the internet has made our lives easy and more efficient. Most of us spend a fair amount of time online. So, remember, it is our responsibility to use the internet wisely for the good of all.

Thank you.
